Best of Belgium

Manufacture Belge de Chocolates: making people happy, one truffle at a time

In Brussels, a team of more than 220 chocolate experts is creating some of the finest chocolates in the world. Relying on expertise that dates back to the 1920s, the Manufacture Belge de Chocolates is the home of Godiva and its own name brand Rosalie’s. Jean-François Cambier, Business Development Director, explains how the company develops its tasty treats.

WaWaah Water: a tasty, fun and healthy drink for kids

Parents want their children to drink plenty of plain water, but how to convince children that the healthy option is also the fun option? WaWaah Water to the rescue! This sugar-free, tasty and fun drink with added vitamins is a healthy option for parents who try to limit the sugar intake of their children.
Poppies Bakeries: traditional craftsmanship on a large scale

Ever been surrounded by a million colourful, delicious macarons? At Belgian baking expert Poppies Bakeries, it’s just part of the employees’ everyday setting. “By combining the craft of traditional baking with the know-how of large-scale production, we are really making our mark on the sector,” says Gudrun Lefevere, Product & Marketing Manager at Poppies Bakeries.

Galler maintains the tradition of filled chocolate

Even as a supplier to the Belgian Royal Household, the Galler chocolate factory has made their irresistible filled chocolates accessible to all. A choice that was made without compromising on taste or on their commitments to a more sustainable and humane chocolate industry. In 1976, Galler’s filled chocolates were created. Today, the company is looking forward to a strong international growth.

Milcobel: why the world imports Belgian dairy

If milk and dairy products are produced all over the world, why do more than 100 countries import Milcobel Premium Ingredients from Belgium? “Because of the consistent top quality and our ability to offer highly customized products, especially in the mozzarella, shredded cheese and milk powder segments,” explains Annick Janssens, Marketing Manager Milcobel Premium Ingredients.
